New ConTex-Commentary - issued:	30.09.21
So here is the Menu for the week: soaring gas priced in Europe starting to affect industry, Evergrande, a lot of people in the UK who want to fill up their cars but can't, and, what seems to develop into a timeless classic, chip shortage.....and lets not forget port congestion. Amongst all that excitement, our ConTex index seems to be an Island of calm, with an overall 1,1% increase over the week. Sure a month-on-month increase of 8,2 % is excellent news and I still have to run my eyes and look twice and take in the year-on-year numbers: An almost 600% increase...this should also be a reminder where we are coming from...week-on-week, as mentioned , nothing exiting to report, with the larger sizes providing for the larger, albeit modest movements. Despite (or because of) the above mentioned ,excitements' a change of trend in the short and medium should not be expected. With that, wishing you a nice weekend to you all...(which our readers in the UK will probably spend at home)
