New ConTex-Commentary - issued:		24.02.22
The Container time charter markets remain fairly quiet recently. This is by far no sign of any weakening but rather resulting out of a very tight tonnage supply meeting a sustained healthy demand. This scarcity of available tonnage is consequently leading to a further firming sentiment across all segments. This week New ConTex is closing at 3408 points, marking a slight increase of 1,9% week on week. The small feeder segments have been able to gain most this week with strongest increases have been registered by the 1100 TEU small feeders increasing by 2,8% week on week. The 6 months period is closing at USD 42.825 increasing by USD 1.154. For reference, one year ago the same segment was valued at USD 10.844 only. Next to the small feeders, the 4250 TEU working horses increased by 2,2% week on week and records USD 106.200 this week, i.e. an increase of USD 2.270.
